

BOTH LEAP TO THEIR FEET.

CONKLING AND GOWEN CALL EACH OTHER BLACKGUARDS.

A Fight Seems Imminent, but Talk Prevails
—Mr. Conkling is Overheard to Call a

A Fight Seems Imminent, but Talk Prevails. Conkling is Overheard to Say He Will Not Recede from His Objective.

TRIDENT, Oct. 26.—The Conkling-Gowden-Dinamore fight was resumed in the United States Circuit Court in this city this morning. The question before the Court was the motion made several months ago by counsel for Dinamore for a preliminary injunction to stop the lease. Gowden stated that the defence was still engaged in taking testimony, and further exceptions to the answers and been proposed by the complainant, and that it was manifestly impossible to discuss the subject of a preliminary injunction at present. He suggested that the thing to do was to argue the exceptions to the answer and get them out of the way. Conkling and Seward jumped at the chance, and were for proceeding at once.

Conkling sarcastically alluded to the gentleman's readiness to proceed at once, some day, to the subject of the case, and to the earnestness so that everybody laughed. He then suggested that he would like to hear Robeson, "that my august friend across the table, distinguished wherever he is, who has been so long and so ably engaged in the case, argue this question now."

Mr. Gowen afterward was explaining to the Council that he had been asked to furnish the counsel with the means of understanding my remarks. "Perhaps, if he will wait until the next day, he will be able to do so."

"If by listening for two or three minutes," replied Mr. Robeson, "I can understand, I can understand anything that the learned counsel says, I will gladly pay that price for an unusual amount of time. If I cannot do so, I will be content upon the exceptions for Monday at 11 o'clock."

The taking of testimony was then resumed.

While Mr. Gowen was conducting a redirect examination of Mr. Conkling, the latter had left it off in New York on the previous day. His purpose was to show that the witness was not reliable, and had attempted persistently for several years to obtain money as the price of his silence. Mr. Robeson interrupted the question.

"I give way to the Secretary of the Navy," said Mr. Conkling, and sat down with a significant bow.

While Mr. Gowen was conducting a redirect examination of Mr. Conkling, the latter had left it off in New York on the previous day. His purpose was to show that the witness was not reliable, and had attempted persistently for several years to obtain money as the price of his silence. Mr. Robeson interrupted the question.

"I give way to the Secretary of the Navy," said Mr. Conkling, and sat down with a significant bow.

"Put that down. The counsel called the witness a scoundrel."

"No one would repeat a remark overheard as

Then you are the background!" exclaimed Mr. Gowen, passionately.

Mr. Conkling leaned to his feet. "You made me the background to a low tone to another man. No gentleman would repeat it unless he forgot himself," he said, calmly, but with his face fully flushed.

Mr. Gowen rose and faced Conkling, his beardless face distorted in anger, and almost as red as that of Roberson, who leaned excitedly forward to witness almost any further combatants.

Mr. Clarence Seward half rose from a chair, a lock of his long hair hanging in disorder across his forehead. The other lawyers stood up, and the crowd outside the railing pressed forward.

"They are going to fight," somebody exclaimed.

The two men stood not three feet apart. Mr. Gowen at length partially recovered himself, but shouted into Conkling's face:

"I am not in the least willing to be assailed in this way for protecting a witness from the outrage inflicted upon him by the counsel. It was the part of humanity to do so. I am proud to have done so."

The examiner then interposed and restored order. To-morrow Mr. Babcock of Adams Express Company will be examined in Mr. Sewall's case. New York has nothing to fear. The case will be done in the case until after argument and decision upon complainant's exceptions.

Mr. Patterson Guarding Miss Lent's Honor

Mr. Joseph Patterson of Boston, whose name

Miss Florence Lent, a singer of Brooklyn, was in the latter city yesterday. His object was to consult with counsel preparatory to instituting proceedings in Montreal against the proprietor of the hotel for ejecting him and Miss Lent. He emphatically denies any impropriety, and says he visited the hotel for no other purpose than to Opposed to Prison Contract Labor.

Workingmen of Newark held a large meeting in the Academy of Music in that city last evening. Several persons were detained in the act of doing Alimony for Mrs. Johnson.

Judge McCue denied a motion in Brooklyn yesterday for a new trial in the case of Mary C. Johnson against El Johnson, and an order was granted requiring Johnson to pay his divorced wife $600 a year alimony and $200 a month. Mr. Tony, counsel for Mrs. Johnson, has received from that lady a $20 gold piece and a $1

An Exhibition of Tobacco in Porto Rico. Ponce, in the island of Porto Rico, is to have an industrial exhibition, which will be opened on Dec. 1, with a display of tobacco and of inventions relating to the cultivation of the plant and the manufacture and packing of the prepared article. Foreign inventors' exhibitions may be represented. Mr. Henry Hoste of 4

Obituary.

Gen. Enrique Gutierrez, Senator and Minister of Honduras, died on Sept. 13. He was the mainstay of the Ministerial triumvirate, governing the country in the absence of President Soto.

Major Nicholas N. Nien of the Third Cavalry, in command of Fort Atencio during the last day of the

The Registration.

This is the last day of registration. The places of registry will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock at night. The registration yesterday was 32,620, making a total for the three days of 100,000.

Signal Office Prediction.
Fair weather, northerly winds, becoming variable, stationary or rising barometer and temperature.

SPARKS FROM THE TELEGRAPH.

The Democrats of the Second Assembly district of Jersey City nominated Joseph T. Kelly last evening.

David Rich, son of Apostle Rich, was sentenced to the penitentiary in Salt Lake City on Thursday for robbing the Zion's savings Bank.

The President yesterday signed the commission of Benjamin Butterworth as Commissioner of Patents, vice Edgar M. Marble, resigned.

Yesterday Mr. Copeman, with four other persons sailed from Dover across the English Channel to Calais in his seat raft in six hours.

Marshall Harris says that he killed John Daggett, who was found dead on the street in Greenfield, Ohio, on Thursday, and that he acted in self-defense.

Orders have been issued by the Navy Department to have the armored torpedo steamer Intrepid, now laid up at New York, put in dry dock and converted into a light draught gunboat for service on the Asiatic squadron.

The President has appointed Max Polachek to the United States Consul at Ghent, John S. Tucker to be Secretary of the Territory of Montana, vice McCutcheon, resigned, and Thomas H. Blingsley to be Postmaster at House Point, N. Y.

A freight train on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad ran into a construction train on Seventeenth street, West Philadelphia, yesterday morning. The bridge over the railroad at that place was demolished, both engines badly damaged, and several cars wrecked.

Capt. A. C. Rand and Mate Thomas Fender of the steamer Tropic, who were convicted in the United States District Court in Philadelphia of violating the neutrality laws by furnishing arms and ammunition to insurgents in Haiti, were yesterday sentenced to one year's imprisonment each and to pay a fine of $5000 and the cost of prosecution.
